FACES DRUNKEN
DRIVING CHARGE

Youngstown, Struthers,
Canfield Men Victims
Of Crashes

Three men were hurt seriously in two traffic accidents investigated by Salem state highway patrolmen
Thursday night and this morning.
Both crashes happened near Can-field and the driver of one car, a Salem man, was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The injured:
Harry Haney of Struthers, back
broken and skull fractured.
Harold Pelly, 30, of Youngstown,
skull fractured.
Russell Burkett, 47, R. D. 2, Can-field, skull fractured and lung punc-tured. Recovery doubtful.

Salem Man Jailed
Myron Annibella, 29, of 775 S.
Lundy ave., was jailed as a drunken driver after his automobile, although he had been going at an excessive rate of speed, crashed into the rear of the machine driven by Haney on Route 224, two miles west of Canfield. Pelly was riding with Haney. Both cars were traveling west at the time.

The accident occurred at 6:45
p. m. yesterday and the collision caused both cars to go into a ditch
after being practically demolished.
The machine in which the two men were riding came to rest against a telephone pole, Corp. Winston Arey of the local patrol, said.

Annibella, who miraculously escaped injury, was lodged in the Mahoning county jail at Youngstown by Deputy Sheriff French. A hearing is deferred, pending the outcome of the victims' conditions, the officers said.

Haney and Pelly were removed to Youngstown South Side hospital.

Asks Death Penalty In Suicide Pact Slaying

District Attorney Hears
Story of Broken
Romance

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, March 25.—District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan said today he would ask a first degree murder indictment against Donald F. Carroll, Jr., 16-year-old son of a retired army officer, who is accused of slaying his young sweetheart.

The girl, Charlotte Matthiesen, 18-year-old typist, was slain yesterday with the elder Carroll's army revolver in a bedroom of the Carroll home in Jackson Heights, Queens. Sullivan said the boy signed a statement that the slaying was the result of a suicide pact.

They had turned to death as the only way out, Sullivan quoted the boy, because Miss Matthiesen was pregnant, and marriage was impossible because they had no money.
Carroll shot the girl but did not kill himself—either because he lost his nerve or, as he told Sullivan,
the girl had made a last minute plea to spare himself and he had heeded it.

An autopsy confirmed the pretty typist's approaching motherhood.
Sullivan said he would ask a first degree indictment but "what a trial jury will do, I would not be able to prophesy."

Police reconstructed the tragedy from the story told by Carroll and from a note found on the kitchen
table.
The note, as given out by Prosecutor Sullivan, read:
"Please bury us together. Please collect Charlotte's salary and my Bowers bank savings account and pay off (1) Charlotte's Arnold Constable bill and (2) Charlotte's dentist bill.

"Donald F. Carroll,
"Charlotte Matthiesen."

Charlotte had added a postscript,
Sullivan said, addressed to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Matthiesen, in which she wrote: "Dearest mother and daddy—I love you both and I am sorry for this but I love him more. Charlotte."

Carroll, freshman at New York university, said Charlotte came to

Anti-Nazi Storm Bund
Rally In Philadelphia;
Riot Ensues

COLUMBUS, March 25.—Announcement by Atty Gen. Herbert S. Duffy of an investigation into alleged German Nazi organizations in Ohio was followed today by the withdrawal of William G. Ruhnke
as president of the Dayton branch of the German-American bund.

Duffy called upon Fritz Kuhn of New York City, national bund president, for detailed information on activities of the German center in Cincinnati, youth camp No. 5 in Cincinnati and Camp Richtenhofen in Dayton, saying that "if this is not immediately forthcoming, action will be taken to compel that such information be certified to this office."

Denies Dayton Camp

Ruhnke gave no reason for leaving the organization and denied existence of a camp at Dayton.
When Wilhelm Kunze, national bund lecturer, spoke there recently,
he said plans were being considered for the establishment of camps
throughout the country.

"Certain information has come to me during the last four or five weeks concerning these Nazi groups, and I am desirous of finding out more about them," Duffy wrote Kuhn.

The attorney general declined to reveal the source or nature of his information and would not state what action he contemplated if an answer to his request was withheld.

Riot in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, March 25.—A riot precipitated when a crowd of nearly 100 anti-Nazi sympathizers stormed a meeting of the German-American bund, disrupting it temporarily. Left more than a score of persons nursing black eyes and bruises today.

Fighting flared for several minutes at the meeting last night before riot squads quickly put an end to the hostilities. Later a second clash broke out along the street fronting the meeting place,
where members of the Citizens'
Anti-Nazi committee were picketing.

Police Inspector William Scull
said he was told the rally was intended as a celebration of Hitler's seizure of Austria. Wilhelm Kunze, bund leader, who spoke after the session was resumed, asserted it was "merely a stated monthly meeting."

"Our principles," Kunze declared,
"are against atheism, for religious freedom, and against subversive internationalism. The German-American bund has no definite program
at the present."

JUNIORS SCORE
IN STAGE PLAY

Comedy, "That Girl Patsy," Will Be Repeated Tonight In School Auditorium

An exceptionally large opening night audience attended the first performance of "That Girl Patsy," annual dramatic production of the Junior class of the High school, in the auditorium last night.

The play, a delightful comedy about a slum girl brought into a wealthy family's home, was one of the most entertaining dramatic offerings given in recent years by High school students.

The cast members delivered excellent performances in the following roles: Mrs. Warren, Valois
Finley; Miss Harper, Mary Louise
Emery; Prof. Orlando Powers,
Eugene Neale; Susie, Dorothy Milligan; Julia Warren, Alys McDonald; Fred Coulson, Richard Capel;
Bob Warren, Leavitt Schertzer;
Violet Manners, Therese Hoff; Mr.
Warren, Harold Fitzsimmons; Denny, Nick Chittier; Patsy, Polly Silver; Philip Greer, Robert Vickers.

The play will be repeated at the auditorium at 8:15 tonight.

Papers Released

COLUMBUS, March 25.—Highway department papers, aside from those concerning hot mix paving material or contracts, were available to the department today, released from a restraining order by Common Pleas Judge Henry L.
Scarlett.

Highway Director John J. Jaster,
Jr., said business of the department was impeded by a general restrain-er tying up all papers.

Gambles Security On Hope
Fascists Will 'Play Cricket'

Few Ministers Carried More Responsibility Than Chamberlain As He Outlined Policy

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK, March 25.—Prime Minister Chamberlain's long deferred announcement of Britain's foreign policy—in effect that England will fight only where her interests are concerned—is more than a statement of policy: It is a striking affirmation of the English statesman's faith in mankind.

He is—as some of his own followers have warned him—gambling the future security of the British empire on his belief (or maybe it is hope) that the Fascist states will "play cricket."

Few British premiers have carried a greater burden of responsibility than did the slight, frail appearing Chamberlain as he faced a tense house of commons to make his pronouncement.

His alone was the ultimate decision as to what course should be pursued in this great international crisis. He was a solitary man in a lonely post, for the support of his colleagues couldn't alter his personal responsibility.

Whether Chamberlain, who has aged in the service of his country,
is right or wrong, history will record that he did not waver as he took his place by the ancient oaken table on the floor of the house. He spoke his mind with the cold precision which is one of his characteristics, the while he leaned an elbow on the old leather-bound dispatch box which has served so many generations of prime ministers.

"We still intend," said that clear but unemotional voice, "to employ ourselves and urge others to employ the methods of reason and diplomacy rather than those of menace and force."

This had reference to the fact that Chamberlain for a long time has been trying to make agreements with Hitler and Mussolini in the interests of peace. Just now, since Hitler's absorption of Austria, Britain has centered her attentions on Italy in the hope of weakening the Rome-Berlin axis
and thus perhaps forcing the German leader to restrict his program.

What He Has In Mind
What Chamberlain has in mind,
in pursuing his policy of not responding to arms unless British interests are affected, is this:

1.—He is following the advice that a bird in the hand is worth a couple in the bush. That is, peace right now is worth a lot of vague possibilities for the future.

2.—He is gambling that if any great danger arises in the distant future, Britain will be able to protect himself.

Chamberlain's opposition, clam-oring for positive action, paints a rather terrifying picture of the future in an attempt to scare the premier.

Hitler, the opposition says, projects a great Germanic federation which will dominate Europe, while Mussolini is claimed to aspire to taking over control of the Mediterranean area, thereby severing
England's imperial life-line.

The large labor opposition in the house of commons laughed jeeringly when the premier announced his faith in Mussolini's assurances that Italy has no territorial or economic aims in Spain or the Balearic islands.

Altruistic Motives Doubtful
The Laborites profess to find it hard to believe that Duce's intervention on the side of the Spanish insurgents is purely altruistic.

The British labor party for long years took a decidedly pacifist stand.

The militarism displayed by the dictators, however, and the Nazi suppression of labor unions, wrought a change in the views of the British labor leaders. We thus get the curious situation in which the hard-bodded Tories are riding herd on the revolving ex-pacifist Laborites.

Nazi Reactions To Hull Proposal Awaited In Washington

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., March 25.
—President Roosevelt said today
the American proposal to give asylum to political refugees in Germany and Austria also applied to oppressed minorities in Russia, Spain and Italy and any other country abroad.

He added that it was designed to help all groups seeking to get out of troubled lands—Jews, Catholics and Protestants, that no legislation was required to accomplish the purpose, and that it was in line with domestic policy that goes back to 1789 when the United States held itself out as an asylum for political refugees.

Talks To Reporters

The President talked of foreign and domestic questions to reporters
as he sat in an open car in front of a press cottage.

With him were William C. Bullitt,
American ambassador to France
and Basil O'Connor, his former law partner. He said he had talked with Bullitt about how to rid the government career services of men who remain in them although incompetent.

The President said requests for asylum have come from various faiths and that no more than the present immigration laws of the respective assisting countries allow would be permitted to enter.

As for Austrian and German minorities, he said the American law provides that when two countries merge, their quotas are merged into one. As far as America is concerned this would permit about 25,000 to come from the enlarged
Germanic nation.

Await Nazi Reaction

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The success of Secretary Hull's proposal for evacuating political refugees from Germany and Austria, informed persons agreed today, will depend largely on what restrictions are laid down by the Nazi government.

Germany, they said, has followed the practice of permitting emigrants to take little or no money
with them.

This policy has the effect of discouraging the refugees, and also raises the question in other countries of whether to welcome penniless persons.

Hull sent telegrams to nine European and 20 American nations yesterday, proposing the setting up of an international committee to facilitate the emigration through financing by private organizations.

The reaction from Germany was awaited with particular keenness, since it became evident Hull's proposal had not been communicated to Berlin.

The German embassy said here it had received no advance notification. Aattachs declined to comment.

Fairfield School
To Have Musicales

EAST FAIRFIELD, March 25.—
The 12 grades of Fairfield Centralized school will take part in the annual school musicale next Thursday and Friday nights.

Music will be provided by the High school band, in short concert, and the school orchestra, directed by Charles Eesenwein.

For the first performance, the first four grades will present a Negro minstrel. The high school students also will stage a minstrel program, with Donald Steltz as interlocutor and Robert Richard,
Raymond Reash and Robert Buzzard as end men.

Soloists will include Verna Rice,
Galen Burt, Frances Rupert, Virginia Wise, Ruth Evans, Zada Farmer and Lois Rupert.

The program will be repeated the second night, except that an Irish minstrel will be substituted for the one given the night before. All programs will be supervised by D. L.
Lusk, music supervisor of the school.

DR. MORGAN DISPOSED OF

It is never a pretty sight to see an official beheaded for daring to disagree with a superior. No amount of legal varnish will hide the mar made by the administration's rough handling of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan.

The manner in which he has been forced out of the Tennessee Valley Authority commission leaves the impression his removal was more important than removing him in strict accordance with law.

The sensibilities of many persons have been affronted by an action which made the end seem more important than the means. This is the kind of thing which never can be done safely under a government of laws.

Naturally, President Roosevelt wants TVA to operate with a minimum of friction. In his opinion, Dr. Morgan was a cause of friction. It must not be overlooked, however, that the other two commissioners, whose attitude happens to coincide with the President's, also were causes of friction. The mere fact they were two to Dr. Morgan's one settles nothing. It might as easily have been the other way about.

What has been done will have this unfortunate effect. It will make a completely objective analysis of the facts to be turned up in the forthcoming congressional investigation more difficult, because it is plain that Mr. Roosevelt does not intend to be objective.

On the contrary, he has taken the offensive in advance of the investigation by straining his authority to be sure that no matter what conclusion is reached about Dr. Morgan's action, Dr. Morgan will be out of the way.

RETURN OF THE GRINGO

While the United States, Mexican and British governments spar gently with one another over the question of who has first rights to petroleum in Mexico, hotel men, restaurant proprietors, souvenir shop owners and all others hoping to profit by the tourist trade south of the Rio Grande must be biting off their fingers down to the second knuckle.

The most conspicuous effect so far of the seizure of American and British oil properties in Mexico is the exodus of frightened employees as Mexican workers celebrate their triumph over foreign capitalism. This may be red pepper sauce for the politicians, but it's bound to be cold potatoes for the tourist tradesmen.

After all, interesting as Mexico is proving to be for American tourists, they won't relish the prospect of being treated like gringos while they nibble experimentally at Tortillas, buy their baskets and hammered silver and gape breathlessly at the ruins of a civilization which must have come close to being one of the most advanced on earth of all time.

At the moment, the probability they will stay away in droves is the best reason for believing that something will be arranged to circumvent the ugly word "seizure" and to convince the gringo that nothing but, the best intentions in his behalf exist in the policies of the National Revolutionary party.

UNDER CULTIVATION

The German foreign office is officially peeved. The Vargas government in Brazil has taken steps recently which, complains the foreign office, prevent Germans from cultivating their nationalism in South America. This isn't a joke; it's serious.

The notion that Germans, meaning persons who speak German, continue to belong to Germany no matter where they live isn't new any longer, but familiarity isn't making it smell any better.

Does this screwball Nazi notion make allowances for Brazilians, or Austrians, or Frenchmen, or Americans, or Laplanders who want to cultivate their nationalism in Germany? Does it concede to any other nationality what it demands for German nationality?

The answer to this being an unequivocal "No," it's going to be mighty hard to weep any tears for Germans caught cultivating their nationalism in any backyard on earth. If they want to raise that particular kind of vegetable, there surely must be room left for them under the watchful eyes of storm troopers.

Or are they like the Russian reds—much keener about their nationalism when they're a good, safe distance away from it?

SUSPICION DAWNS

Every time another 100,000 words were registered on the talk meter during the recent filibuster on the lynching bill, the public was more puzzled. Why was the filibuster?

Who was trying to stop the filibuster, outside of a handful of resolute led by Sen. Wagner of New York? Was the President behind the bill? Who was behind the bill?

These questions never were answered. Between the lines of Washington dispatches, however, one could read that the filibuster survived because a majority of senators, including the strategists of the Democratic majority, wanted it to survive. There were various motives. One of the motives was to seem to be for the bill without having to do anything about it—the oldest trick in politics.

Thus, when the President, now that the bill has been shelved, comes out flabfooted in favor of it, the suspicion dawns that this may be a proposal which is 30 or 40 times more useful on the shelf than it possibly could be in the statutes. In other words, it never was intended to be passed, but only discussed for the effect it would have in the 1938 elections and thereafter.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, March 26

Propitious planetary intervention may make this day a day of decisive progress and prosperity. Developments may come as reward for diligent work and sound judgment, as well as the preferment or favors of employers, superiors or those in power. It is probable that there may be surprises in this direction, and the financial status may be greatly increased by some very clever coups or bold manipulation.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a progressive, prosperous and happy year, with a surprising development coming as a reward of merit from employers or those in authority, or as a tribute to some very clever management of financial opportunities. Promotion, favors and recognition from influential places may contribute to a stabilization of the fortunes.

A child born on this day may be steady, industrious and dependable; also adaptable, quick-witted and ambitious. It should be favored by those in power and achieve a place of importance and financial prosperity early in life, possibly through some surprising adventure or daring coup.

DEPOSED TVA HEAD SAVED DAYTON FROM FLOODS

DAYTON, March 25. — Dayton, now protected by five huge dams and feeling immune to any possible threat of flood, looked back 25 years today to the start of the disastrous rampage of the Miami river which left 350 known dead and property damage estimated at $100,000,000.

It was Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, recently deposed chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, whom this city of 200,000 hailed as its savior from any such future tragedy. Morgan planned and directed the Miami valley flood control project which now harnesses the Miami, Stillwater and Mad rivers and Loraine and Twin creeks.

Starting 25 years ago today and continuing for a week, the flood tide submerged homes and business blocks in Dayton.

The city was placed under martial law. Troops patrolled streets of Piqua and Troy to the north while Cincinnati and the tri-state area to the south battled the swelling Ohio river.

At the height of the flood in Dayton, fire brought new horror. Fire apparatus from Columbus, Cincinnati and other cities was rushed here on flat cars—but not in time to save a large section of Dayton's business district.

A month later, the flood wreckage had been cleared away partially. Morgan came to Dayton to begin his study of the situation. He suggested that the 10 counties most affected by the flood cooperate in a huge project which developed into the construction of the five dams at strategic points in the area now referred to as the Miami conservancy district.

The dams were built at a cost of approximately $40,000,000. Two thousand men were employed over a period of five years on their construction. The barriers are Taylorville, on the Miami river north of Dayton; Lockington on Loraine creek, protecting Piqua, Troy and Tippicanoe city; Huffman, on the Mad river east of Dayton; Englewood, on Stillwater river north-west of Dayton, and Gemantown, on Twin creek to the south protecting Germantown, Franklin, Middletown and Hamilton.

The greatest test of the dams was in the spring of 1929 when water rose to 57 feet behind Englewood dam, largest of the five. Even then water covered only about one-third of the reservoir area behind the earthworks. In the big Ohio river flood of January, 1937, the Dayton area was entirely unaffected.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland, New York City.

SHOCKS SERIOUS

As civilization has advanced more and more, hazards and dangers to life have appeared. We recognize the great mechanical and social advantages of electricity. But in a recent publication of an insurance company, it is pointed out that electricity was responsible in 1934 for more than 600 deaths in the United States.

Dr. Copeland

It is true that many of these fatalities occurred among electrical linemen, electricians and workers engaged in installing high power machinery. Some were caused by electric burns. Some involved high voltage exposure. Others occurred as a result of contact with the ordinary household current. There is a universal belief that the low voltage so commonly found in homes is not dangerous. The ordinary household current of 100 to 110 volts is not in itself a dangerous current. But occasionally it may be of sufficient intensity to cause severe damage to the heart and produce instant death.

Too Many Careless

Many of these accidents could have been avoided. Too many persons are careless about the handling of electrical appliances. It is customary to assume that electrical equipment is always in perfect order. But we must not overlook the fact that with constant use wires become frayed and damaged. Conditions result which are capable of producing short circuits, and these make the appliance dangerous and prepare the way for electric shock.

It is unwise to handle electrical equipment while the hands or other parts of the body are wet. A dry skin serves as a barrier against the electrical current. But a moist skin lowers this resistance and a wet skin acts as an excellent conductor.

Many deaths have been reported of persons who received fatal shocks in handling electrical apparatus, while in the bathtub or before drying. I am glad to say that definite efforts are now being made to prevent these deaths. By emphasizing the danger, the public is coming to realize the importance of caution.

Electrical appliances should be checked and serviced by licensed electricians. This practice will increase the life of the appliances and prevent conditions favorable to direct contacts with the current.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

Asks For $20,000

COLUMBUS, March 25.—A request for $20,000 to finance the grand jury investigation of the state parole system was before the state emergency board today. Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy made the request for the jury which is in recess after indicting two witnesses last fall on perjury charges.

Thumbs Down

PITTSBURGH. — A cooperative date bureau, with the girls sharing equally the cost of an evening's entertainment, got the "cold shoulder" from co-eds at Duquesne university. Said Theresa Hockensmith, speaking for the co-eds (she has a full date book):

"It's a horrid idea to embarrass women students."

Theater Attractions

A pleasing combination of all the elements necessary for screen success insures the entertainment qualities of "Hawaii Calls," Bobby Breen's latest musical starring vehicle which comes to the State theater tonight and Saturday. The background itself is one of unusual beauty, since the story is laid in the semi-tropical beauty of the Hawaiian Islands. Many of Honolulu's most famous spots, including the harbor, Waikiki Beach and the Royal Hawaiian hotel, are scenes of the action in various parts of the story. Comedy In Picture, Too
The comedy element of the picture is ably cared for by the grimsy Ned Sparks and by Irvin S. Cobb, writer and entertainer. Tense drama comes from a plot involving the attempted theft of government naval secrets. Instrumental music is supplied by the orchestra of Raymond Paige, one of radio's outstanding conductors. Foremost of the picture's attractions is the silvery voice of Bobby Breen himself, who is heard in five songs during the progress of the story. The newest Gene Autry musical western, "The Old Barn Dance," is the attraction at the Grand tonight and Saturday. Smiley Burnette and Helen Valkis have supporting roles. The story centers around the activities of a group of singing cowboys, led by Autry, who earn their living by travelling from one rodeo to another, selling horses to neighboring farmers. They have built up a profitable business, but meet with severe competition when a tractor company, with a shady reputation, begins selling modern tractors to the farmers, in place of the horses. Gene accepts an opportunity to broadcast over a small radio station, only to learn shortly that the tractor company which has ruined his business is the sponsor of his program. Gene takes his band and leaves town, going to a nearby rodeo, in an attempt to revive the horse business. Foreclose on Farmers
In the meantime, the tractor company begins foreclosing on many farmers who are unable to meet their first tractor payments. At the same time, the company continues the series of broadcasts, using transcription records which had been made from Autry's programs, faking them to appear as though Autry and his band were actually performing. Believing that Autry is double-crossing them, by playing for a company that has tricked them, the farmers seek revenge. Gene and Frog learn of this, and come back to destroy the records. In so doing, they smash the only evidence which is available that can show the illegal aims of the tractor company. This is a transcription record which Johnny Salty's young brother (Sammy McKim), has made of a discussion between company officials. How Gene, Frog, Sally, and Johnny finally expose the company officials, makes an exciting climax. Person who want anything, know The News is the Want Medium in this vicinity. So read it.

PLAN CARNIVAL AT COLUMBIANA

High School Will Hold Athletic Program Tonight

COLUMBIANA, March 25.—Columbian High school will hold its annual athletic carnival Friday from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m. in the school auditorium. The public is invited to attend. A free stage show will be given, which will include boxing, wrestling, tumbling, etc. Some of the booths and entertainments in addition to refreshments, will include a medicine show, artist painting, basketball foul shooting, dart throwing, broad jump, rope climb, shuffleboard, nail-driving, magician, knob-socking and beauty queen.

The local Christian church held a Brotherhood dinner last night in conjunction with similar events in over 2,000 churches of the denomination. A local program was given and those present also heard radio broadcasts of similar events from various parts of the country. The King's Daughters class of Grace Reformed Sunday school will meet Friday evening in the church parlors with Mesdames John Kurtz, Ross Sheets, Ruby Schiller and Misses Alberta Windle and Bertha Metzger as hostesses.

Auxiliary Meets Tonight
The County council of the American Legion auxiliary will meet Friday evening at the East Palestine Legion hall, with the county president, Mrs. Charles Roller, in charge. Those desiring transportation should meet at Mrs. Roller's home, Vine st.

A representative of the county auditor's office will be at the Citizens' Savings bank Friday and Saturday to assist taxpayers in filing their personal property tax returns.

The L. L. class of the Presbyterian Sunday school will meet Friday evening at the church. A covered supper will be served at 6:30, with Mesdames Wm. Rupert, F. J. McGahan, Ellsworth Miller and Lauren Myers as hostesses. The annual election of officers will follow.

The Mary-Martha class of the Lutheran Sunday school held its March meeting this afternoon at the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Tullis and Mrs. J. V. Early called on Alliance relatives Tuesday evening.

Quartet Sings Here
The Gideon quartet of the First Church of the Nazarene, Cleveland, will be in charge of the Sunday evening service at the First Friends church.

The quartet is composed of Messrs. Withrow, Frye, Hoar and Early. Withrow is a brother of Mrs. Henry Wolfgang, Arch st., and Early is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Connell, East Fifth st.

Hospital Notes
Winifred H. Welch of Lisbon and Omar Webber of New Waterford have been admitted to Salem City hospital for surgical treatment.

Mrs. William Liebschner of 542 Euclid st., Mrs. William J. Schlag of Columbiana and Edward Siding, Jr., of 165 West Fourth st., had their tonsils removed today at Salem City hospital.

Theft Is Reported
Leona Bartholow of 274 N. Howard ave. told police yesterday her pocketbook, containing $1 and a watch, valued at $45, was stolen in a downtown store where she is employed.

Pastor On Leave
Rev. C. F. Bailey, pastor of the First Friends church, is taking a four weeks leave of absence from his pastoral duties. Rev. and Mrs. Bailey and their youngest son, George, left this morning for Phoenix, Ariz., where they will visit Rev. Bailey's sister, Mrs. H. C. Baldwin.

Among the points of interest they will visit in the west are Grand Canyon, Zion park and Boulder dam. They will spend a few days with relatives in California. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bailey of Easton, Pa., the former a brother of Rev. Bailey, are with the Baileys on this trip.

"BATTLESHIP" WINS GRAND NATIONAL STAKES

AMERICAN SON OF MAN O' WAR WINS IN RACE

Royal Danieli Second To "BattleShip" In Aintree Sweepstakes

(By Associated Press)
 Aintree, England, March 25.—BattleShip, Mrs. Marion Scott's American-owned son of Man O'War, today won the 100th running of the Grand National.

H. C. McNailey's Royal Danieli was second and Sir Alex MacGuire's Workman third in the field of 36.

In scoring the fourth American victory in the history of the race, BattleShip paid 40 to 1. Royal Danieli was held at 18 to 1 and Workman at 28 to 1.

BattleShip, up with the leaders from the start, scored by a head in the closest finish in recent years.

The first three horses came to the last fence almost on even terms but Workman dropped far back in the final test as BattleShip, ridden by Bruce Hobbs, and Royal Danieli staged a thrilling duel. James V. Rank's Coolen, one of the favorites, was fourth; J. B. Snow's American-owned Delachance, fifth; E. T. Hunt's Red Knight 2nd, sixth; Arthur Sainsbury's favored Blue Shirt, seventh; Lord Derby's Underbird, ninth; Rank's Bachelor Prince, tenth; Mrs. S. H. Creagh's Lough Cottage, eleventh; and Mrs. J. De Selincourt's Provocative, twelfth.

Rock Lad, owned by H. R. Bain of Toronto, was seriously injured when he fell and was destroyed. A crowd of 250,000, liberally sprinkled with members of the peerage, although the King and Queen did not attend this year, turned out to watch the English, United States, Canadian and French-owned horses start over the 30 stiff jumps.

Liverpool, as always, was jammed for the event. Every train and bus line poured additional hundreds into the city from all over England. Planes zoomed in with their loads of passengers from the continent.

As always, Americans were here by hundreds for the renewal of the classic Joseph P. Kennedy, the U. S. Ambassador, was among them.

The bookies stood to lose $5,000, 000 if the favorite, Arthur Sainsbury's Blue Shirt, came home the winner, but all through the history of the Grand National that has been a rare occurrence. This year, the field was below the usual standard, with Blue Shirt rated in the betting books not much better than the 1937 winner, Royal Mail; James V. Rank's Coolen, second a year ago, and the highly-regarded American owned entry, J. B. Snow's Delachance.

Precedent was all against Royal Mail repeating. Only three times in the century of Grand Nationals has a horse come through on top twice in a row. Abd El Kader did it in 1849-50, and 20 years later The Colonel accomplished the feat. Then there was a lapse of 66 years before Reynoldstown won in 1935 and '36.

In addition to Delachance, three other American-owned horses were in the field listed to start, but none was given much chance. Two, Mrs. Marion Scott's BattleShip, a son of Man O'War, and Frank Gould's What Have You, an offspring of Trystler, were both American bred and owned. BattleShip was quoted at 45-1 in the Victoria club's final callover odds, and What Have You was 100-1.

The jinx that has pursued this Grand National for months held good right to the end. Tom Isaac, the jockey for the other American-owned horse—Mrs. Jesse Metcalf's K. D. H., a 100-1 shot was injured, suffering a concussion in a fall during a race yesterday.

In past weeks, the jinx struck again and again. H. Lloyd Thomas, former owner of Royal Mail, was killed in a fall from a horse. Three horses were destroyed and several jockeys were put on the injured list. Royal Mail was sold to Mrs. Camille Evans after Thomas' death.

Blue Shirt's favored position in the betting—he was quoted at 100-15 in the final callover—wasn't solely on his merits. The odds were shortened because he was coupled with Phakos, winner of Wednesday's Lincolnshire handicap, in the spring betting double.

BOWLING RESULTS

The Salem News was back in the lead today in the Commercial league; thanks to Berg Bretzels, who took three games from the Sinclairs at the Grate Recreation alleys last night to knock the latter team out of a tie for first place.

The Newsies were unable to win but one game of their match with Smith's Creamery, but this victory enabled them to pull back into sole possession of first place again.

Grate Recreation kepters gained a notch on the News and two steps on the Sinclairs by winning two out of three games from People's Lumber. In other matches, Merit Shoes won three games from the Salem Engineers, Crescent Machine won two out of three from the Ohio Bell and the Leetonia All-Stars, a new entry replacing the Saxons, took two out of three from the Salem Polo Club.

COACH PLANNING SCRIMMAGE FOR HIGH GRIDDERS

Quakers Expected to Mix It-Up In Practices Next Week

Scrimmage is not far off for the 1938 crop of Salem High school football warriors, although their four-week spring training grind, which will end with a regulation game against the seniors, is little more than under way.

Following yesterday's opening practice of the spring grid program, Coach Carl Schroeder announced that he will probably insert light scrimmage sessions into practices next week.

Schroeder's decision to start scrimmages without much delay was prompted by the fact that most of the picked squad of 44 gridders from last year's varsity and junior varsity teams reported for the opening workout in good physical condition.

The majority of the holdovers from last seasons team have kept in top shape during the winter months by following a regular training program, which included workouts under the guidance of Coach Schroeder every Saturday morning at the High school.

During these Saturday training sessions, Schroeder kept the physical condition of his football charges up to par by matching them in boxing, wrestling and other indoor sports which are excellent for developing legs and wind.

The scrimmages will probably start next Monday or Tuesday and will be confined to running plays against a defense. No lengthy mix-it-up sessions are planned until later in the spring.

Schroeder has outlined a routine schedule for the practice grind, starting daily with drills on blocking, tackling and other fundamentals and winding up with offensive and defensive work.

The Quaker coach plans to spend considerable time in instructing his charges in defensive set-ups.

While only four lettermen—Bill Schaeffer, Bud Dean, Stu Wise and Dick Beck—are available as the foundation for his team, Schroeder is not in the least pessimistic.

He believes the attitude and enthusiasm of this year's squad is much better than it was last year and that all of his charges possess a winning spirit.

The strength of the 1938 team is expected to be bolstered considerably by the return of Mike Oana, who won his letter as a guard in 1936, but was ineligible for competition in 1937 due to scholastic difficulties.

Schroeder plans to switch Oana into the backfield, using him in the No. 2 position which was assigned to Bill Malloy last season. Dean and Wise are practically certain to win other backfield assignments, leaving only one position for Schroeder to fill.

Beck, a tackle, and Schaeffer, an end, are the only lettermen left on the line, but a number of outstanding reserves from last season are available to fill the other posts.

They include the Wukotich twins, Melvin, center, and Marvin, guard; Mike Guappone, guard; Joe Vender, tackle; Leonard Piersol, guard; Harold Fitzsimmons, tackle; and Dick Terry, end.

Marvin Wukotich may possibly be shifted into the backfield if Schroeder fails to find one of his reserve backs from last season who is capable of working with Oana, Dean and Wise.

Among the leading candidates for the vacant backfield post are Joe Morris, Bob Clark and Bill Rogers.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 25.—Jack Doyle, the betting commissioner, who lost a fortune betting against Bobby Jones when Bobby was in his heyday, is quoting the Atlanta at 25 to 1 for the approaching Masters' tournament at Atlanta and betting even money he doesn't finish higher than fifth.

Wallace Wade, Duke football coach, is taking in the North and South and shooting a pretty fair game of his own. Jimmy Fox, one of baseball's longest hitters, lost a driving contest to Jimmy Thomson in Sarasota.

Thomson drove exactly 345 yards. Jimmy was just 60 yards short. Those who should know say a golf match between Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb is in the making—probably on the west coast.

We got the tip on Roy Parmelee's new arrival, just a few hours too late to beat the other fellows to the press. They say they had fireworks, a parade and all for the premier of the Lou Gehrig movie in St. Pete yesterday.

One of the hottest golfers here is Sammy Byrd, the reformed baseball player. You should see him pole out those long shots.

Maybe Ray Wolf doesn't know it but North Carolina U. is going to reward him with a new contract calling for at least a $2,000 raise. Bobby Jones says the second shot Sammy Snead made on the first hole here yesterday was one of the finest he ever saw. This is praise indeed and a take a great big bow for himself.

YAWKEE HAS NO REGRETS; SEEKS PENNANT AGAIN

Red Sox Owner Is Proud Of Past Efforts and Continues Ways

By GAYLE TALBOT

SARASOTA, Fla., March 25.—Joe Cronin, manager of the guided Boston Red Sox, was at the plate, swishing hard but vainly at a splendid assortment of curves, and a fan whose voice carried was yelling with a degree of scorn: "Sit down, ya quarter-million dollar bum, ya."

The young man sitting next to the writer was able to grin and remark: "That must be my money he's indignant about." It was, for the man who still could smile about it was Tom Yawkey, who has sunk more genuine spending money in the Red Sox than grandpa had oats.

Yawkey isn't indignant at all and he has no particular regrets. He is proud, rather, that he has kept faith with the fans of Boston in trying to give them a winning club. He's quit tossing his riches about quite so lavishly, but there's still more where the other came from if Yawkey sees a player he really wants.

"I could have gone along slowly establishing a farm system and in time probably have given them a better team. I considered the better way was to show them some quick action, and at the same time be building for the future. Things are going all right."

Things were not, unfortunately, going all right for the Red Sox at that moment. They were trailing, 2 to 1, and such high-priced individuals as Cronin, Jimmie Fox, Frank Higgins and Roger Cramer weren't hitting anything except fouls.

"It's nothing to worry about," said Yawkey optimistically. "We were late starting and our batters haven't caught up with the pitchers to come yet, but it's a good team. All we need is for one of our young pitchers to come through and we will be up there in the race."

Of all the greats his bankroll has lured away from other clubs, Yawkey is perhaps the most enthusiastic about Lefty Grove. He thinks that Lefty, at 37, still is the best in the game.

St. Paul was on hand to strengthen his chances for the 1940 A. B. C. meeting.

Buffalo produced the only newcomer to the standings yesterday when the Lang's Beer and Ale five, featuring Joe Miller, former national match game champion, turned 3,020 pins to take third place.

A few strikes in the tenth frame of their final game and the Langs would have taken over the leadership.

Great Athletes Extinct, Veteran Track Ace Says

BY FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, March 25.—R. P. (Doc) Williams of Lebanon, who burned up the cinder tracks with such blazing speed around the turn of the century that the record books still refer to him as the "fastest human," deplored today that "there aren't many great athletes any more."

Williams did most of his running and jumping as a professional, and a dozen world records are still chalked up to his credit, although he made the last of his marks just 30 years ago when he was 30 years old.

Modern conveniences which tend to make training less rigorous than in the "good old days," were blamed by "Doc" for the decrease in the number of top-notchers.

Take a look at the marks credited to Williams: 20-yard dash, 2.2 seconds; 50-yard dash, 5 seconds; 60-yard dash, 6 seconds; 100-yard dash, 9 seconds; 135-yard dash,

DYKES SEEKING STIFF DEFENSE

Trade rumors Between St. Louis - Brooklyn Are Revived Today

PASADENA, Calif., March 25.—Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox is determined to make the club good defensively even if it costs hitting power. After trading Zeke Bonura for Joe Kuhel he is sticking to his purpose of developing Larry Rosenthal, a fine fielder, as a regular outfielder in place of the weak fielding but heavy hitting Rip Radcliff.

LOS ANGELES.—The Chicago Cubs have decided on their 1938 outfield. Manager Charley Grimm will have Augie Galan in left, Joe Marty in center and Frank Demaree in right when the season opens.

TAMPA, Fla.—The Cincinnati Reds' manager, Bill McKechnie, planned to throw Lee Grissom and Whitey Moore against the Dodgers today to get even for Wednesday's defeat. The Reds were on their good behavior after dropping one yesterday to Kansas City, an event that filled the deacon with wrath.

NEW ORLEANS.—Bob Feller has not yet been scored on in the eighth inning he has pitched for the Cleveland In-

ORLANDO, Fla.—Outfielder Al Simmons, who didn't break down any fences last year, is batting around 600 this spring for the Washington Senators.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The persistent rumors that a trade has been brewing between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals had additional support today. Larry MacPhail and Branch Rickey, bosses of the two teams, were together for a brief conference yesterday.

HERE IS A REAL MONEY MAKER

This farm has 127 acres, a large portion of which is good bottom land; soil several feet deep. Tip-top potato land. Farm fronts on two good paved roads. Has 5-room house with furnace; nicely planned. Finished in hard wood. Priced at $6,500. Owner would consider a down payment of $2,000; farm is financed for the balance. Or would consider a cheap little place of a few acres in exchange.

"EXTRA FARE" by Edna Robb Webster

SYNOPSIS

Jaxie Cameron, lovely young newspaper columnist, travels west from Chicago aboard the Big Chief, extra-fare train, in search of copy for the Star-Tribune's "Friendly Corner." Inside Car 74X, she spots a bride and groom, and notices a girl who she later finds is Clarice Cole, ex-waitress bound for Hollywood. Carrie Dade, a worn young mother with two small children, arouses Jaxie's sympathy. But the most interesting passenger on the train—at least to Miss Cameron—is Kirby Elliott, tall and gray-eyed and humorous. As dusk deepens, these two remain talking on the observation platform. Mose, the porter, is busy pacifying Mrs. Sanders, a demanding old woman who shares Section 6 with Elliott, and explaining travel technique to Jake Weatherby, gaunt mid-west farmer unused to luxury trains. An unassuming little man in khaki sits reading. Finally all the passengers are settled for the night—but not all of them to sleep. Kirby Elliott, in upper 6, remembers Jaxie's brown eyes, bronze hair, and husky-sweet voice. The next morning, Jaxie chats with Marie Bortin, the bride; and with Clarice. Both are thrilled to meet a newspaper woman whose name is a household word in Chicago. Also present are the Misses Yates and Colbin, middle-aged school teachers on a holiday. While the train stops at Kansas City, Clarice sees the handsome man in Car 3 strolling toward her. Haven't I met you before? he asks as they meet.

CHAPTER X

"Really," said Clarice, "you needn't be so conventional."

"No—but—well, haven't I seen you in Chicago, somewhere?"

"Nothing is more probable," she agreed, but did not further enlighten him as to where their meeting might have been.

"Then we must be — we are — friends."

Her eyes rebuked him, but her scarlet lips laughed. "That suits me fine."

The irascible woman from lower 6 breakfasted alone in the dining car. To walk outside as the others were doing might have been much better for her digestion, but her convictions were as fixed as the rock of Gibraltar. Her three-minute eggs, postum and tomato juice had been served precisely as the train stopped at Kansas City, to give her the full benefit of the fifteen-minute stopover. The tomato juice was not cold enough, she fumed, the postum not hot enough; and she had declared to the waiter that the eggs had been boiled at least four minutes. Finally, he had escaped her tirade of complaint and loitered in the open vestibule within signaling distance. He would have liked to descend to the platform, as had the rest of the crew, but he dared not. Why had this old grinch been wished onto him, he wondered.

Jake had found Martha and was towing her, bag and baggage, cardboard hatbox and shoebox lunch, from the station waiting room to the Big Chief. Mose was on duty with his little yellow footstool at the steps of car 74X, to act the part of host to the new guest. His white-toothed greeting frightened Martha, who never had been closer to a colored man than to pass one on the street. But it appeared that Jake was surprisingly friendly with this dark person. A friend in need was a friend indeed, to Jake's way of thinking.

"Is dis yoh missus?" grinned Mose.

"This is Marthy," Jake corroborated, "and the best little woman in the country. And Marthy—this here feller can do some o' the gol-darnedest things you ever seen, when it comes to keepin' house on a train. He kin tell you anything you want to know about it. That'll be a plenty, too. Jist yu wait 'til yu see this here outfit." Mose assembled Marthy's queerly assorted baggage with expert pester and led the way inside, having assisted her up the steps with the gallantry of a Sir Walter Raleigh. He adjusted her belongings, disappeared and returned with a paper bag. Jake was already in the midst of explanations, like a youth displaying his first treasure. Marthy's round little eyes snapped with awe and excitement.

"Foh yoh hat, ma'am, to keep it clean," Mose explained.

Martha was appreciative, and told him so. "Thank you, sir!" she said. "See," exclaimed Jake, "he thinks of everything, even some things you can't. He's part of the marvel of this here train!" Which pleased Mose immensely. He was human, and so not averse to flattery.

The little man across the aisle came in and sat down abstractedly but his casual glance dampened Jake's enthusiastic monologue.

Martha removed her black straw hat and sat down meekly. "Who is he?" she whispered.

"I dunno. They's lots o' critters on this train. Did you see how long it is? Ten cars besides the mail car! It's the fastest train to the coast, too. The porter told me so. You won't believe your eyes when we get going," he swaggered as if he had personally ordered the speed.

Martha was abashed by his garrulity. All his life Jake had been a laconic and taciturn man. Now, he was positively loquacious. If the trip to California was going to change him like this she wasn't sure she wanted to go there.

"And what's happened to home, since I left?" He exhausted his information, at length, and recalled that part of his life which now seemed very far away.

"Plenty, and then some," Marthy's lips closed grimly. "But you seemed a heap more interested in this train than in the doins at home, so I jist let you meander on."

"What now?" he demanded.

"Well, all them gold bonds that Nat Bartwell sent to Chicago to be put in a safety deposit vault has disappeared!"

"What?" Jake's voice was shrill. Marthy lowered hers to a hoarse whisper. "He come out to see me jist as I was leavin' to go to the station. He says he felt it his duty to tell me, seein' as you wuz away and us goin' to be gone for a spell. I was that scared I didn't know what to do. But I thinks, thinks I yod wud be waitin' here fer me and I'd best come along, anyway. But," she warned in an undertone, "Nat says we musn't talk about it to anyone, 'cause they're tryin' to trap the thief by keepin' quiet about it."

Jake's face, which had glowed with such pleasure a few minutes before, was ash-gray. "Why, Marthy! them bonds wuz our biggest savin's, besides the land, that we're goin' to live on in our old age. That's why I let Nat send them to Chicago, where they'd be safe, and jist be drawin' interest." His voice sounded hollow, as if he had just received a blow in the stomach.

"What'll we do? Hadn't we best go right back home now, and not spend all this money goin' to California?"

"No, Nat said for us to go along and not worry. Besides, You've bought our tickets, haven't you? So it won't cost us much more to get there and stay fer awhile. Nat said he'd notify you soon's he heard anything."

"Well, I'll be gun-swoggled!" his vocabulary was inadequate in such an emergency. "Anyhow, I'd like to know what good them papers would do anyone that did take 'em."

"Why, Nat says they're negotiable—he kept usin' that word. It means they're jist like so much money, and anyone kin use 'em as has possession of 'em. That's why he wanted to make sure they wuz safe, and sent 'em to Chicago to put away in the big vaults there. You know our vault at Kingsburg ain't any too safe fer valuables. Nat says it had to be an 'inside robbery,' which means that someone who worked at the bank took the bonds."

Passengers were returning to the train, following stentorian echoes of the brakeman's "All aboard!"

Each one carried a morning paper that proclaimed in blatant, ninety-point headlines, "HALF MILLION BOND ROBBERY." The right-hand column featured further details of the crime.

"There!" Marthy's quick eye had deciphered the words across the outstretched page which the little man in section one was reading. "The papers tell all about it. Git one, Jake."

Jake demurred. "Oh, everyone's got papers. No use fer us to buy one, when we kin jist as well see somebody else's. Nothin' we kin do about it, nohow, I reckon."

"But I'd like to know if they caught the thief, yit," Marthy insisted.

"Well, now, you jist be patient, an' you will."

No sooner had he said the words than the man across the aisle tossed his folded newspaper aside and sauntered away toward the men's lounge. Jake waited for several cautious minutes, then surreptitiously reached over and confiscated it.

"Why, Jake!" Marthy admonished him. "You ain't got no right to do that!"

"Huh, why not, I'd like to know? He's finished with it, ain't he? A newspaper that's been read ain't got no more value than a last year's bird's nest. I can't do no harm readin' it a little, I reckon." He adjusted his bifocal spectacles to peer through the lower section, his sharp chin raised in line with his vision.

"Al right, but if you're goin' to read it, read out loud so's I kin hear, too," his wife prompted, a willing accomplice.

Jake cleared his throat noisily. "Well, here at the top it says that an employee of the bank is suspected of the robbery. Believed to have boarded a west-bound train after disposing of part of the bonds."

Well, now wouldn't that beat your carpet for you? On a west-bound train! Say, spoon! he's right on this here train with us?"

Person who want anything, know The News is the Want Medium in this vicinity. So read it.

Don't be silly, Pa. Dozens of trains go west every day. I should think it wud be purty hard to trace him, even if they knowed he wuz on a train. Jist says they believe he's on one." Marthy was practical. Newspaper conjectures did not excite her.

"Jist the same, I guess I'll turn Sherlock Holmes, an' keep my eyes open. I got enough personal interest in this here thing 't' pay me t' help the law of I kin."

Martha smiled a deprecating smile. If the idea gave Jake something to think about, she had no objection. His confinement in this cubicle of space already was affecting him like a harnessed colt. She feared he might bolt into something rash before the end of the following day.

Jaxie loitered over her breakfast, reading the morning paper propped against the silver sugar bowl beside the window ledge. She delighted in the floating sensation afforded by the smoothly speeding train and the flying world outside the broad casements which made of the dining car a veritable glass house. She felt buoyant and glowingly alive this morning, with a generous benevolence toward all mankind. Her judgment of the western papers' columns and features was less critical. She would not have been a born newspaper woman had she not compared its merits with her own. A good sheet, was her charitable conclusion.

Jaxie had dreamed of this experience during the three years she had served on the staff of the Star-Tribune—to speed, luxuriously out into space on a first-class train, representing her paper and her column! Her eyes and thoughts were on the alert every moment. She liked to watch people, their expressions, actions and reactions. It had become a habit with her, always.
